THE PEOPLE AND THE ARMS CONFERENCE.

The habit of Americans to more or transmitted desire something new to occupy their attention, and the companion habit of soon thing of bings present is going to have a very haportant relation to the success or failure of the conference for the limitation of armaments.
The calling of the gathering of vorld statesmen and diplomats now needing in Washington, was very lirgely brought about by an almost universal expression of public sentiuniversal expression of public sentinear which demanded that something definite be done in the direction of stopping the sinful waste of war.

When the conference convened and

If interest of the public begins to lag there is the the photic begins to lag inter is the danger that the delegates comprising the conference will forget some of the idealism which they early and so disinterpstedly proclaimed and will allow themselves to be more or loss influenced by the more sordid motives of national or political advantage.

"For these reasons," says an appeal issued by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, "it is especially necessary that the common people of the world continue to take an interest in the conference and its actions. If they let up, the creakers and pessimists and militarists may cause the conference to fall in important particulars."

The conference should flot fail in any particular. It will not if the people are unyielding and porsistent in their demand that the full objects of the gathering be accomplished.

Emmet's Epitaph

Harrisburg Tolograph

Who will write Robert Emmet's epitaph, is a question that doubtless is in the minds of many a loyal Irishman in these days, with Ireland on the threshold of a new day in her rela-tions with the world. As he stood on the dock, within sight of the gallows on which he was to die, the great Irish patriot in 1803 delivered his amous apeach ending with a perore tion that became a rallying cry for Irish Nationalists since his day. "When my people shall take their places among the nations of the earth, then, and not until then, let my epitaph be written."

Robert Emmet's epitaph may goon be written. Under the treaty which now awaits ratification by the Dail Eireann and the British Parliament, Ireland becomes practically an auto-nomous matton, a "free state," with a government modeled upon the domin-ion systems of Canada, Australia and New Zealand, so liberal in its pro-visions and so grounded in all the fundamentals of logislative independ-ence that it may well claim to have assumed at last "its place among the nations of the earth."

While the struggle for Irish Inde pendence dates back into the dim distance of goven centuries of history, the real modern movement for jegislative autonomy, or "home rule," bogan' with Dean Swift, who may be called Ireland's first Sinn Feiner, two hundred years ago. The keynote that Swift sounded in 1721 was the first definite formulation of a policy of home rule for Ireland whose echoes have inspired Irish lenders to the present day. He asserted the logislative independence of Ireland and the nullity of all measures that had not received the sanction of Ireland's own Parliament. He avowed his entire ad-herence to the Empire, but declared that he owed his allegiance to the

that he owed his allegiance to the King, not as the King of England, but as the King of Ireland. And it is on this base that the "Irish Free State" has come into being. Strange that it should have

In song and story the sacrifice of Emmet has been on the lips of lib-erty-loving men for years, and now his epitaph may be written But while this fg being done, jet not Ireland forget Dean Swift.

thy of a Man by I-IIs Wife, or Reverse, Falls to Satisfy the Public.

Mowhere in English is there, I think, is good biography of a man by his wife. On the whole, husbands have perhaps done rather better than their wives. At once comes to mind Carlyle on Jane Welsh; but even here attention finally rests not upon the wife, but upon the hasband in his gloom after her death, writes Wilbur Cross to the New York. in the Kala Review.

Ir emember quite well, too the "im-pressionistic portrait" which Profes-sor Falmer drew of his wife, Alice Freeman. He called it "a personal estimate, an evolutional study" But here, again, there was eventually too much of the hu-band and his subbati cal years when he and his wife traversed Europe. What Professor Pulmer and others bave attempted cannot be done. Wives and husbands cunnot be outspoken of one another in print.

Sometime, no doubt, the existing restraint will be removed from their pens, and then we shall have some en-tertaining biographies. In the meantime, any one who desires may read in a privately published volume Lady Lytton's highly spiced comment on Lytton's highly spiced comment on her husband, the novelist, or what Pepys put down in cipher after quartels with his wire—whose nose he tweaked on two occasions and who in turn threatened to pinch his with red-hot tongs. This is what we shall get the multiple sever cut out if the muffler is ever cut out

FINDS LEAD HAS TWO WEIGHTS

Aarvard Professors Win World Recognition by Researches With Metals.

RESULT OF 35 YEARS' WORK

investigation Throws New Light on the Nature of Matter-Finding of Two Kinds of Lead Important Discovery.

Gambridge, Mass., Nov. 7 .-- The atomic weights of nearly forty of the ninety or more chemical elements out of which everything in the universe is built have been definitely determined by Harvard chemists in the course of investigations begun thirty-live years age and extending up to the present

Attention was called to this prolonged research today by the an-nouncement that largely on account of his work in this field, Prof. Theodore W. Richards, Nobel prize winner in 1914 and director of the Wolcott Gibbs Memorial Inboratory at Harvard, had been appointed a member of the international committee of scientists on elements, while Prof. Gregory P. Baxtor, formerly a pupil of Prof. Richards and now an inde-pendent investigator at Harvard, had been chosen for the international committee on atomic weights.

The Harvard research is said to have thrown new light on the perplexing problem of the nature of matter, while data obtained are being used daily by thousands of chemists throughout the world.

Weights Found Constant.

The atomic weights of the elements are described as the relative weights in which these elements combine with each other to form the countless substances of which the universe is constructed. These weights have usually been found to be amazingly constant. Silver from all parts of the world and again the sash and its ends are apt from many different eres has always to supply the only suaricle of color the same atomic weight. Copper from an the whole, the rest of the gown burrope is identical in this respect with that mined under the bottom of Lake serving merely as a background for

Prof. Baxter's work long since proved that iron and nickel which fall from the sky in meteorites coming from the spaces far beyond the earth's orbit have exactly the same atomic weights as iron and nickel from the earth, a fact cited as indicating in one respect, at least, the unity of the universe.

The most important single result of the Barrard study of atomic weights is said to be the discovery, first proved definitely some years ago by Prof. Richards and still holding good through recent careful tests, that there exist at least two kinds of lead, instead of one. It was found that lead see properties exactly similar to those of ordinary lead, has a distinctly smaller atomic weight, 208.1 as against 207.8.

Working on Lead.

The lead from the radium minerals is supposed to come from the decomposition of radium. Why its atomic weight is different from that of ordi-mary lead, whether ordinary lead may not itself prove to be a mixture of lighter lead with a heavier variety, perhaps due to the disintegration of the element thorium, and the element thorum, and whether ather elements, hithorto supposed to be final and indivisible, may not also severe looking. These are best when they are made of krimmer or one of the awhole series of new problems as up a whole series of new problems as to the composition of matter, are questions to which the answers are being eagerly sought by scientists over the world today.

Prof. W. D. Harkins of Chicago has strong evidence that ordinary chloring is a mixture, and F. W. Aston of Camfiredge. England, by an entirely differ ent method, indicates that many other elements are probably likewise composed of atoms of different weights. Harvard chemists are working at present to try to find out more about these two kinds of lead, but they are hamperad by the fact that, once mixed, the two kinds cannot by any ordinary chemical methods be separated.

Come any more attention account or intricate than at present.

Tendency to Use Big Sashes on After-

On the more girlish evening and afternoon dresses, notes a Paris fushion writer, there is a tendency to use big sashes of tulle or of chiffon liberally furnished with bows and ends, regardless of any type of pattern. They suit the gown and the wearer—that is all. And that they succeed in doing admirably. Here at the side of the waistline is another one that has found great favor with designers. It is apt to be very much of a modern art flower with single huge petals made of velvet in startling colors. On an evening gown, the flower often repeats a suggestion of color in another part of the gown and by that process makes the color take a roset effective position in the whole design. Hats of the middle season are also things of compromise; many of the extraordinary shapes that threatened bare passed away. usually leaves us with the points that greatly in demand, especially for wear with those suits and wraps that are trimmed with fur. A matching toque of fur helps to helpsten the effect of the trimming and keep the whole cos-tume in harmony. As a rule these little turban arrangements are not overly supplied with trimming. Indeed.

many of them have no decoration of any sort. There are fur tame and fur turbans and fur rounded hats that pull down over the hair. And there are fur Russian turbans which are very high and come so popular.

Choice in landing places was equilibed to either the rugged mountain peaks below or a small island of black lave in the middle of the lake. After some deliberation he chose the latter and made a land-ing in the huge cliff-rimmed cup. The plucky pilot then set his radio outilt operation and after many hours of valting, rescue planes arrived carry ing the necessary spark plugs. Adverse air currents within the great "moon hole" prohibited the descent of the rescuers, and so the plugs wer attached to parachutes and dropped. The last pilot placed the plugs, started
